The alarmist s cry of paternalism carries no terror with it. because the people see a greater, completer form of government to be the natural product of normal social development. In point of fact, as reported in our daily papers, government is being compelled to assume larger responsibilities and take on industrial functions willynilly. This in its turn will compel the people to take a more direct hand in government. Once a week would suit me. Popular legislation, direct legislation, law-making done by the people is a reform that is already gaining headway. I have been pleased to notice in The Social Gospel reports of the adoption of some forms of the referendum in several states. This that is already accomplished in the right direction encourages us who have been deprived of one half of our town meetings to hope for better things. Every state, county, city or township officer should be voted on yearly. Every important legislative act should be submitted to a popular vote before it can become law. Every executive or judiciary function should be subject, not so remotely as at present, to the popular will. Voting for a governor or a president is a leap in the dark. 1 is not self-government. We choose, or rather we are supposed to choose, the men who shall rule over us. This is surely quite another thing than ruling over ourselves, or than majority rule....
